Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation Child Care Development Fund

About the CTGR CCDF Program

The CTGR Child Care Development Fund (CCDF) Program helps eligible families from U.S. federally recognized tribes afford child care by providing financial assistance and connecting families to licensed, qualified providers and supportive resources.

Our Mission

Our mission is to support Native children and families by increasing access to safe, stable, and high-quality child care. We strengthen families, support positive child development, and ensure parents can work, attend school, or participate in approved activities—while honoring and supporting the cultural identity of Native children and families.

Who We Serve

- Families affiliated with a U.S. federally recognized tribe
- Residents of Salt Lake, Utah, or Tooele County
- Children served: Ages 6 weeks through 12 years

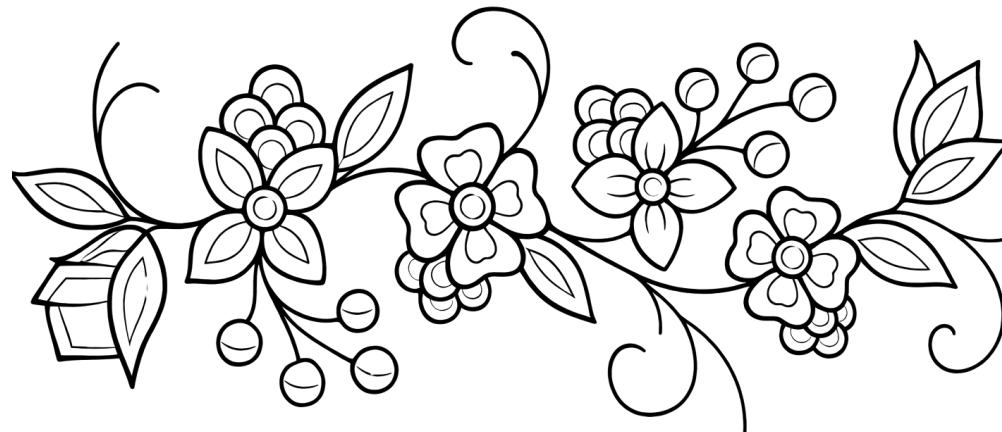

Families may qualify if they:

- Meet income guidelines, with documentation such as:
 - Recent paycheck stubs (typically up to 4)
 - Employment verification letter
- Are working or participating in education or training, with documentation such as:
 - Class schedule or school enrollment verification
 - Training or program participation verification
- Are experiencing qualifying life circumstances, which may include:
 - Homelessness or housing instability
 - Family circumstances as defined by CCDF/OCC guidelines
 - Children with special needs (documentation may be required)

Child care payments begin only after eligibility is approved and required agreements are signed by the parent/guardian, child care provider, and the CCDF Program.

Services We Provide

- Child care assistance for eligible families
- Help locating licensed, certified, and approved child care providers
- Support for working parents, student parents, and families in transition
- Caseworker guidance and family resources
- Connections to community and early childhood support services

Documentation requirements vary based on family circumstances and program guidelines.
